1. The first of these is the fact that the the world is not a uniform whole, but a collection of many different parts, each of which has its own special characteristics and qualities.

2. The second is the fact that the parts of the world are not all of the same size or shape, but vary in many ways. Some are very large and complex, while others are very small and simple. Some are very old and well-developed, while others are very young and still in the process of forming.

3. The third is the fact that the
same value or importance, but vary in many ways. Some are very valuable and important, while others are very worthless and unimportant. Some are very beautiful and interesting, while others are very ugly and boring.
